Breakfast Programs' Newsletter

Falling Into the Swing of Things

Now that fall is here and breakfast programs across Canada have settled in for another school year, we certainly have a lot to be thankful for. There are so many people working behind the scenes to keep these programs running smoothly, and their impact on student well-being is tremendous. In this October issue, you will find stories about some of these programs, along with a spotlight on the work done by our programs coordinator and a few recipes to nourish body and mind. Enjoy your reading!

NEWS

National School Food Program

The Government Relations team has implemented a series of strategies throughout the year to draw attention to the continuous needs and to the fundamental right of all children to have access to nutritious food at school. Recently, BCC ally, MP Julie Dabrusin has launched an online petition to emphasize the importance of school meals and the pressing need for a National School Food Program. The petition asks the federal government to immediately invest in feeding Canadian school children.

Spotlight on Our Programs Coordinators

BCC breakfast programs are known for being adaptable to the school communities they serve — and that's because they can count on our programs coordinators, who are there to work closely with each school team and ensure everything runs smoothly.

Whether it's for support in boosting the nutritional value of the meals they serve, reaching out to local partners or getting information on how to manage their food inventory, the programs coordinator is an essential resource who can help schools turn challenges into opportunities.

We've prepared a short video to provide a better idea of how our coordinators across the country make a difference each and every day. Be sure to have a look!

YOUR STORIES

An Innovative Way to Promote Nutrition

If your school is looking for ideas to add daily nutrition education to your breakfast program in a way that reaches all students, read on to learn how Kikino Elementary School in Kikino Metis Settlement, Alberta, is making it happen. The school includes a daily nutrition tip in their morning announcements, and the staff are seeing some compelling results! Head over to our blog here here to learn more about this approach.

Looking for programs that thrill!

Every breakfast program has its own unique atmosphere and experience. Send us photos of the Halloween decor of the place where students enjoy their morning meal. Your program might find its way onto the Club's social media! Please send them at: testimonials@breakfastclubcanada.org
Happy trick-or-treating!
